About CapTech

We see the cloud as more than just a technology platform. When fully optimized, the cloud has the power to transform organizations and spur innovation. Client Success Spotlight

When a top 10 independent broker-dealer wanted to create a digital simulation of an existing application to avoid exposing customer data, it engaged CapTech to build and deploy the model. Without the need to migrate existing applications, the CapTech team was able to devise a simplified build and deployment that allowed the project to move much faster than a full migration. Once in place, the digital simulation allowed the company to share its systems with prospective financial advisors, as well as train existing financial advisors, all without risking any impact to customer data.

Results:

- The digital simulation was extremely successful, with a 56% engagement rate among the client's advisors.
- Most users signed in more than once, indicating that they found it useful enough to log in a second time.
- The simulation also served to familiarize the client with a cloud-based system by providing them a chance to see how the application would function on a cloud-based platform before making a full commitment to migration.
